

New Beginnings League Constitution (Season 1.0)

III. League Membership & Expectations

Activity and engagement are what we ask of all owners. Dynasty leagues are year-round commitments, and it is no fun for anyone when an owner becomes inactive or unresponsive. We are not asking for forced trades, nor are we discouraging rebuilding or tanking strategies. We simply ask that all owners remain as active and engaged as possible while maintaining the competitive integrity of the league.

We understand that everyone has time commitments outside of fantasy football. However, owners are expected to respond to trade inquiries within a reasonable timeframe and to remain engaged in league discussions. Owners are encouraged to be proactive in seeking trades and communicating with other managers. All trade discussions should be conducted respectfully.

Managers are expected to:

- Submit valid starting lineups each week. Managers should make a reasonable effort to avoid starting players who are ruled out, inactive, or on injured reserve. The league recognizes that last-minute injury news or unforeseen circumstances may occasionally result in an invalid lineup, and isolated incidents will not be considered a violation.
- Remain engaged throughout the year by seeking opportunities to improve their roster or acquire draft assets
- Respond to trade inquiries in a reasonable timeframe.
- Be respectful of others in trade talks
- Manage their roster in good faith and in a manner consistent with the competitive integrity of the league
- Pay league dues by the established deadlines.

Manager removal may be considered for:

- Failure to pay league dues.
- Repeated failure to set valid lineups.
- Extended inactivity without communication.
- Collusion or conduct detrimental to the league.
- General inactivity and lack of engagement
- The commissioner reserves the right to replace inactive managers in the best interest of the league.

V. Rookie Draft

The annual rookie draft will be held as soon as reasonably possible following the conclusion of the NFL Draft.

- 4 Rounds
- Slow Draft
- 24-Hour Pick Clock
- Overnight Pause

VI. Draft Order

Rookie draft order for playoff teams will be determined by final playoff finish.

- League Champion: 12th Pick
- Runner-Up: 11th Pick
- 3rd Place: 10th Pick
- 4th Place: 9th Pick

And so on.

Any ties in playoff finish will be broken by whoever scored the most points in their playoff matchup.

Rookie draft order for non-playoff teams will be determined by Maximum Points For (Max PF).

Among non-playoff teams, the team with the lowest Max PF will receive the 1st overall pick, with the remaining teams ordered from lowest to highest Max PF. This system is used to discourage lineup tanking while rewarding teams with the weakest overall rosters.

VII. In-Season Structure and Schedule

Season outline is as follows:

- Regular Season: Weeks 1-14
- Median Game: A median matchup will be utilized during Season 1 due to the shortened regular season schedule
- Trade Deadline: Week 12 at the conclusion of Monday Night Football
- Playoffs: Weeks 15-17
- Championship game: Week 17

VIII. Scoring

Scoring follows standard Sleeper PPR scoring with the following exceptions:

- Passing TDs: 6 pts
- Interceptions: -4 pts
- Tight End Premium: Tight ends receive an additional 0.5 pts per reception
 - For example, a reception by a TE for 0 yards would score 1.5 pts

IX. Playoffs

Playoff rules are as follows:

- 7 teams will qualify for the playoffs
- The #1 seed will receive a first-round bye
- Playoff seeding will be determined by regular season record
- Ties in the standings will be broken by PF
- Playoff matchups will take place during Weeks 15-17
- The league championship will take place in Week 17
- Third place will be determined by the Week 17 consolation matchup

X. Trading Rules

Trading rules are as follows:

- Future first-round picks may not be traded unless the corresponding season's league dues have been paid
 - See Section II: League Fees & Payouts
- This league operates with an anti-veto philosophy
 - Owners have different player evaluations, strategies, and timelines
 - Rebuilding teams and contending teams will naturally value assets differently
 - Trades will not be vetoed simply because they are unpopular or perceived as uneven
- Trades will be reviewed and processed by the commissioner
- Trades will only be further reviewed if there is reasonable suspicion of collusion, league manipulation, or conduct detrimental to the league
- In cases involving suspected collusion, the trade will be reviewed by a panel of three uninvolved league members selected by the commissioner
- In rare circumstances where an owner appears to be repeatedly and significantly harming the competitiveness of their team through a pattern of objectively poor transactions, the Commissioner may initiate a review
- Commissioner reserves the right to initiate further reviews upon suspicious trade activity that raises concerns regarding league integrity
- The purpose of reviews is to protect league integrity, not to punish differing player values or strategies

XI. Waivers & Free Agency

Waiver rules are as follows:

- FAAB (free agent acquisition budget) will be used for waiver claims
- Each team will start the regular season with $100 FAAB
- FAAB resets to $100 in offseason and at beginning of regular season
- Waivers follow typical Sleeper settings and clear on Wed 12AM following games
- In the event of identical bids, Sleeper's waiver priority settings will determine the winner
